Publication Agreement
Supplementary Material for Design Issues Articles

Supplementary Material Agreement: If you are submitting additional text, video, or other material (Supplementary Material) now or in the future, that you consider relevant to your article, the following three clauses will govern the posting of that material.

You hereby give to MIT Press a nonexclusive license to publish the Supplementary Material by hosting it on the Press's servers, accessible through a link from the Press's web page where your article is listed, and from any other MIT Press website or related website. You understand that the Supplementary Material has not been reviewed or approved by the editors of Design Issues, is not considered part of your Article or of Design Issues, and is not included in any licensing arrangements that the Press may have with respect to Design Issues.

You are free to include your personal contact information and any copyright or other notice that you wish to include in the Supplementary Material, provided it is not in the nature of an advertisement or solicitation of employment or business. MIT Press reserves the right to take down the Supplementary Material at any time if in its sole judgment it believes that the Supplementary Material is not suitable for posting on its website.

You warrant that you are the sole author of the Supplementary Material, or if not, that you have a complete and unencumbered right to grant MIT Press the license stated above. You also warrant that the Supplementary Material does not libel anyone, invade anyone's copyright or otherwise violate any statutory or common law right of anyone. You agree to indemnify us against any claim or action alleging facts which, if true, constitute a breach of any of the foregoing warranties.

I concur in this Supplementary Materials Agreement:                      Initials here: _____
